New Feature! Board's Corner

Hello fellow IACRN members! I was delighted to be asked to write something for the Board's Corner for the month of February! A new year means we have a new President leading the Board of Directors. Mary Larkin's message last month was very inspirational and gives me a deep sense of purpose for the coming year. It's exciting to be back on the board and working closely with Mary Larkin, Mary Jane Williams and the rest of the team.

I'm writing from my home southwest of London in England. I've been reviewing information about our new membership and it's fabulous to see you live across the globe - from 17 countries! When I joined IACRN I was the only member outside the USA. It's been so rewarding to watch this change occur over the years. Growing our international membership will be a personal focus for me. This diversity will bring new opportunities for us all and will further develop a dynamic community of research nurses.

My background in serving on various committees over the years has been exceptionally rewarding and such excellent development for me. I would urge those of you considering a committee role to take a look at our committee page on the IACRN Website. It is a catalyst for your own personal growth- and such a benefit for your fellow members at IACRN...we all gain experience and knowledge from one another. The friendships and learning I have enjoyed from IACRN Committee opportunities are lifelong benefits I treasure. You will be hearing more about how to get involved and I urge you to play an active role in the continued success of IACRN. Its important work we are doing, good for you, good for our communities, but more important, its good fun!
